For the Parents

“We are our children’s learning models. Our attitude about education can inspire theirs and show them how to take charge of their own destiny”.

Being a parent comes with a multitude of responsibilities and duties. All parents want their children to grow up to be healthy, happy and exceptional adults; but for that to happen, children need to be properly cared for, guided, loved, disciplined, taught and encouraged all along the way.

Thumb rules for good parenting are as under:

- ❖ Family of a child is the major source of socialization. Overall performance of a child depends upon the training that they get from their parents
- ❖ Give more time and attention to your children: “It is a known fact that students who get more attention and time from their parents, make more achievements in their educational careers”
- ❖ Make your child feel responsible about their studies and other duties
- ❖ Take interest in their activities, connect with them and guide them for improvement and refrain from bad attributes
- ❖ Give a conducive environment to the children for their grooming
- ❖ Be a role model for them and Be their favourite teacher
- ❖ Each child is unique, don’t compare your child with others (especially when you observe a weakness), rather help him deal with being different and even encourage him to be unique
- ❖ Keep an eye on the activities of your children: if the child is wasting time in doing useless things then parents need to stop them from doing so in a proper manner
- ❖ Practice a gentle but firm style of discipline

Encourage your children, appreciate them, do not rebuke the child in presence of others even if he/she doesn’t perform well, as it makes the child disheartened and the child may lose interest in studies. Help your child to acquire emotional wellbeing. Strive for positive factors such as praise, encouragement, affectionate attention, etc.,. Strive to eliminate negative factors such as ill will towards others, sarcasm, bullying or neglecting the child

The mind of a child is fragile.
Their emotions touch their future.
Your words shape their destiny.

General Zorawar Singh- A Legend

Govt. Gen. Zorawar Singh Memorial Degree College, Reasi has a unique honor of being named after a distinguished and gallant soldier, General Zorawar Singh, who had taken the valour to its new heights.

The saga of this intrepid Dogra General is the stuff that legends are made of. At the same time, his military exploits, his strategic thinking, his brilliant military organization and extraordinary skill in logistics make the life of Gen. Zorawar Singh an object lesson and inspiration, not just for military historians but also for the contemporary soldiers.

The legendary Dogra warrior who was the architect of present Jammu and Kashmir Rifles, Gen. Zorawar Singh is said to be born on 15 April, 1786 at Kahloor (now Bilaspur), Himachal Pradesh. He, undisputedly, was one of the greatest generals that history has ever witnessed. He was a great military genius, a skilled soldier and commander who conquered Ladakh, Baltistan and Western Tibet, thus adding 35000 sq. km. territory to J&K.

As a reward to his services, the then ruler of Jammu and Kashmir, Maharaja Gulab Singh entrusted Gen. Zorawar Singh with the administration of Reasi. After the conquest of Kishtwar by Maharaja Gulab Singh, Zorawar Singh was appointed as Governor of Kishtwar. From there he planned the conquest of Ladakh and Baltistan and prepared his Dogra army for these perilous expeditions.

He took his last expedition to Tibet from where he, along with his army, never came back. Gen. Zorawar Singh's great military endeavours were balanced by a life of modesty and restraint. This brave General did not leave behind either vast properties or deep coffers for his descendants- only a legacy of military achievements that made the historians to term him as the "Napoleon of India".
